Need Something?
Oh Yes,....PLEASE!!

“Ask ‘In My Name’ and IT Shall Be Given.”
Tricky! What’s This “In My Name” Business?

“Wherever Two Are Gathered Together in My Name.”
So There’s More! Two...Who?

Two Is WE United in the One.
Tricky Again.....Two in One.

Two Is WE, Us United.
What’s One?

One Is ALL.....Everything.
Ask for Everything?

Ask as We IN All.
AH!! Ask from the INSIDE of Everything.

That’s “In My Name!!”
So, It’s All About From What Position WE Ask.

United from the Inside.
That’s Not the Way the Nuts and Bolts World Works.

Right On! Inside Is Not Outside.
Wow! Ask United from the Inside and It Shall Be Given.

Comment

"Outside" is the rational, objective, material/physical perspective on reality.

"Inside" is the intuitive, subjective, spiritual/energetic perspective on reality.

Both perspectives are equally important. Achieving the proper balance between them in the roles they play in individuals and societies should be the goal. Unfortunately, in most of today's "advanced" complex societies, the Outside perspective is greatly over emphasized and the Inside perspective is greatly undervalued with its intuitive skills minimally developed. In this state of extreme imbalance, while humanity has achieved a great deal technologically, it is mostly oblivious to what it is missing. In this context, religion is Not the answer. In their current dogmatic state of belief, the major religions are a symptom of a misguided attempt to promote the Inside perspective. As such, they inadvertently encourage their rejection and undermine the value of the Inside perspective. The rational and the intuitive are basic human skills. Developed together equally, they render humanity both very powerful and fully responsible. Miracles merely give witness at the extreme for the significance and value of the Inside perspective and experience. Masters of the Inside-Outside dynamic interrelationship [shaman, healers, seers, gurus, prophets] regularly produce what Westerners call "paranormal" evidence for this dynamic at work in cultures worldwide. A science of the subjective exists, and it is gaining ground.
