

Our Drama

We Are All Characters in the Play of Life
Performing a Panoply of Different Roles,
Here and Now, There and Then
Searching for the Common Thread
That Puts It All Together.

Each Scene Engages:
Mundane Dish Washing
Takes More Time
Than Reciting Marriage Vows
Announcing Hopes for a Lifetime.
Our Scenes Jump From Trivia to Triumph.

Family Acts Bring Offspring
Taking Years to Play Out,
All Taxing Us to Delight
In Careers After College
That Carry Our Very Own Characters
To New Editions In Our Drama Series.

From Dishes to Great Grandchildren
We Perform Rousing Roles
In Overlapping and Demanding Scenes
Through Acts Of Petulance and Purpose
Evoking Both Laughter and Loss.

Is an Unknowable Dramatist
Dictating Our Character?
Our Drama Could Salute Several Religions
Convinced They Exclusively Know
Who the Dramatist Is
And the Details of His Plot.

Not Content with Jesus, Mohammad, Buddha, Confucius?

Or You Could Be Satisfied Seeking to Fulfill
The Best Version of Your Character To the Max.
